They were victims of the 40th floor seriously and extensively damaged during Daisy, and the front of the building was wrecked and all of the equipment destroyed during Hurricane Camille. Mrs. Hilla said, "I am thankful for my boys, however, we did have a slight disagreement when they wanted to relocate on the Highway, if you have ever had a view of the water, you just couldn't be satisfied any where away from it. While it is true that many business firms are relocating on the highway we own this beautiful property with 150 foot frontage and a clear view of the water. I believe that service is the success and as long as we give our customers loyal service they will come to us regardless of where we are located."

Although the Hill family has been in the automobile business in Bay St. Louis since 1923, it was in 1936 when they became Oldsmobile dealers. According to Mrs. Hill they are the oldest continuous Oldsmobile dealers within the State of Mississippi and have a proud record of satisfied customers who return time after time to buy the Oldsmobile car model of their choice.

The late Ben Hill, Sr., was born in Louisiana and was married to Irene Sellier, a native of Delisle and the daughter of Ralph A. Sellier a well-known boat builder.

The Hillies have four living sons, two of whom are connected with Hille Oldsmobile, Inc., Ralph, the second son, lives in Houma and is public relations official for the Reynolds Tobacco Company. The other sons have various careers. The oldest son, Lawrence, is a naval aviator and has extensive mechanical skills. "The other boys spent two years with the General Motors Institution in Flint, Michigan and the younger is now studying with General Motors in Detroit, Michigan. Ralph said their parents always wanted them to be engineers and

Realty Firm Now In New Building

Approximately 800 guests participated in the Open House festivities marking the official opening of the new office-home of the real estate firm, L. I. Kerogsten & Son, located on the service drive just off Highway 90 and near the Bay Bridge.

The well designed and ultra modern building is of brick veneer exterior with a narrow Southern architectural modified entrance gallery supported by white columns in excellent proportions to the structure. The interior, tailored to suit the needs of the firm, has tiled flooring, antiqued wall paneling, and acoustically controlled ceilings. Window treatment gives an excellent view of the beautiful Bay of St. Louis.

Throughout the day congratulatory messages and beautiful floral arrangements were received by the Kerogstens and there were yellow horse-shoes turned open-end up to signify the wish for "holding good luck" and sincere wishes for continued success.

Laurent, senior member of the partnership, did a bit of reminiscing about the days during the Great Depression of the mid-twenties when he first started a career in the real estate business. Office space in those days was in the Old Beach Drug Store, since destroyed by Hurricane Camille. In those days "dirt cheap" meant just that! A few dollars could buy a lot of good property. For example Kerogsten bought up property during the Depression days on Nicholson Avenue in Waveland and 31 lots on Hoffman. The Nicholson lots were 50 foot front by 250 feet deep and he paid "$12 or $15" per lot for them. The entire track of 31 lots on Hoffman cost $550. Choice lots in those days running from Leopold to the beach were bought for $100 per lot. Today this same property is worth $75 $100 per front foot. Kerogsten recalls he bought for $2,000 some four thousand feet from the beach down Leopold.

When asked about the present trend in real estate, Kerogsten said: "A lot depends on the inter-state 10. That will increase the demand especially for commercial property." Kerogsten said he felt that prices reached a peak in 1964 because of the NASA installation, and believes that some leveling off was due to difficulty in obtaining satisfactory insurance.

In connection with the Real Estate business the Kerogstens also handle an insurance business and are the agent for The Travelers Insurance Company out of Hartford, Connecticut. Since the Junior partner in the firm said: "We get insurance all over construction much came under the Coast plan. There is

Joseph Carco Sr.

Funeral services for Joseph M. Carco, Sr., 69, who died at 2:15 p.m., June 9 at his Pass Christian residence were conducted Friday afternoon at Riemann's-Foley Funeral Home chapel followed by religious rites at St. Clare's Catholic Church, Waveland. Rev. William Kennedy officiated.

Interment was in Waveland cemetery with W. J. Lassabre, Louis Lassabre, Jr., J. T. Bourgeois, Jerry Humphries, Robert Bishop, and Clyde Favre as pallbearers.

A native of Bay St. Louis, Mr. Carco resided in Lakeshore prior to moving to Pass Christian 25 years ago. He was a member of St. Clare's Catholic Church, Waveland.

Survivors include a son, Joseph M. Carco Jr., Pass Christian; three daughters, Mrs. Clet Michalky, Algiers, La., Mrs. Marie Bourgeois, Waveland, and Mrs. Helen Lassabre, Pass Christian; a brother, Ernest Carco, Lakeshore; 17 grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren.

insurance available on eligible risk, however, the Mississippi Underwriting Association requires an inspection fee of $10 for residential property and $15 for commercial property. The fee is not refundable and there is no binder-coverage while the application is in the processing stage. When the bureau's representative inspects and gives approval, then insurance coverage begins.

Decorating the walls of the new offices are lovely framed prints from Travelers' Currie and Ives collection. Originals of these prints date back to the 1850's.

A native son of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Laurent Kerogsten was born in Fenton, His parents are the late Dr. and Mrs. Alphonse Ames Kerogsten -- and thus the full name of the firm's Junior Partner has been revealed!

Lubbock Relief Group To Meet

Mississippi Power Wins Edison Award

Mississippi Power Company Gulfport, has received the electric utility industry's highest honor, the Edison Award for its "advanced planning and preparations, for swift and effective measures to restore electric service when the paralyzing Hurricane Camille devastated the company's service area in the summer of 1969."

The Award was presented to A. J. Watson, Jr., President of Mississippi Power Company, by Dr. Bruce Munro, President of the Edison Electric Institute at the Institute's 38th Annual Convention.

In accepting the Award, Mr. Watson said, "For over twenty years, Mississippi Power Company has been refining detailed plans for restoring electric service following a severe disaster. On the night of August 17, 1969, a disaster struck, and its awesome fury and the unprecedented devastation which resulted defy description.

"Our eight hundred and fifty employees were faced with a nearly impossible task of rebuilding transmission and distribution lines and other electric facilities. Despite the fact that some of them suffered great personal losses of their own, they immediately went to work to bring electric service back to the area. In this task, they were joined by almost 1600 personnel from

A Conservative View by James J. Kilpatrick

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee still is sitting on the long-pending Genocide Convention, but out in the liberal jungles the natives are getting restless. The Washington Post finds the Senate's failure to ratify the treaty an "unsightly stain on the good name" of the U. S. A. The American Civil Liberties Union is clamoring for action.

Under the circumstances, it may be no bad idea to look squarely at this proposition. The proposed treaty has, to be regarded as one of two things. It is either a serious act, having substantive meaning as a matter of law, or it is a mere gesture having no real meaning whatever.

The predominant argument, if I read them correctly, is that the treaty is merely a gesture. Seventy-five nations have ratified the Convention in the twenty years since the United Nations first took action. By failing to go along with the crowd, the Senate is bringing needless shame upon the nation. Besides, no one has been prosecuted anywhere for genocide, so why worry?

The morning Post views lawyerly objections to the Convention as silly and absurd. Critics are merely "conjuring up a host of hohobins." They are submitting a "grabag of bugaboos." The purpose of the treaty, says the Post, is simply "to place this country where it belongs, in the ranks of those seeking to safeguard basic human rights throughout the world."

Now, some of us might have supposed that the United States of America already stands well in the vanguard of nations seeking to safeguard basic human rights. The record is flawed, to be sure, it is far from perfect but these things are relative. What have the Russians done for human rights lately?

For those of us who still take the Constitution seriously, it is the first alternative that carries weight. A treaty is no paper resolution expressing the sense of the Senate. At the moment of ratification, a treaty becomes by definition a part of the supreme law of our land. If this convention is to be considered as a sober, substantive act, every word of the proposition merits the same critical study that would be given a proposed amendment of the Constitution.

In such an examination, the Post is not much help. "Genocide, as defined in the convention," the Post tells us, "consists of the deliberate and systematic extermination of an ethnic or religious group." The mind boggles. Perhaps the Post is thinking of some other convention, for such words as "systematic" and "extermination" appear nowhere in the document at hand.

We find, rather, a congeries of words and phrases having a most uncertain meaning in terms of international law. Under the convention, the crime of genocide involves certain acts committed with intent (and there is a nice slippery word for you) to destroy in whole or in part (we may pause to meditate upon "in part"), a national, ethnic, racial or religious group.

One of the forbidden acts is "causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group." "Serious bodily harm" means something or it means nothing. It means, committee of judges, headed by Mr. Mansfield.

The Edison Award is given annually to an electric utility company "for distinguished contribution to the development of the electric light and power industry for the benefit of all." The Award consists of a gold medal for the winning company, and entry of the company's employees in

City Buys Equipment

Griffin Wellpoint Corp. of Houston, Texas was awarded the bid let by the City of Bay St. Louis for installation of a wellpoint system. The cost of this equipment $5,957.00.

This information was released following a City Council meeting. The equipment is needed for making repairs to water pipes. It was explained that frequently workmen are hampered by high water tables which cover water pipes and in order to make repairs it is necessary to pump excess water away from the area.

On occasion the City has rented Wellpoint equipment at a cost of $300, and since low-lying areas have a chronic problem with drainage and high water levels in the ground, councilmen believe the purchase of the equipment would represent a substantial savings in city funds over a period of time. The equipment has a General Motors Diesel 253 engine and the pump model is 66.

SOYBEAN WEED CONTROL

Lots of times weeds germinate and come up at the same time as the soybeans. If you do not get these weeds early, then directed sprays later on will be difficult, if not impossible.

One way to get rid of these early weeds is to make a "cracking application." This means to apply directed sprays at the time when soybeans are just cracking the surface of the ground, but before expansion of the bean's true leaves. This cracking stage application will kill only those small weeds that have emerged.

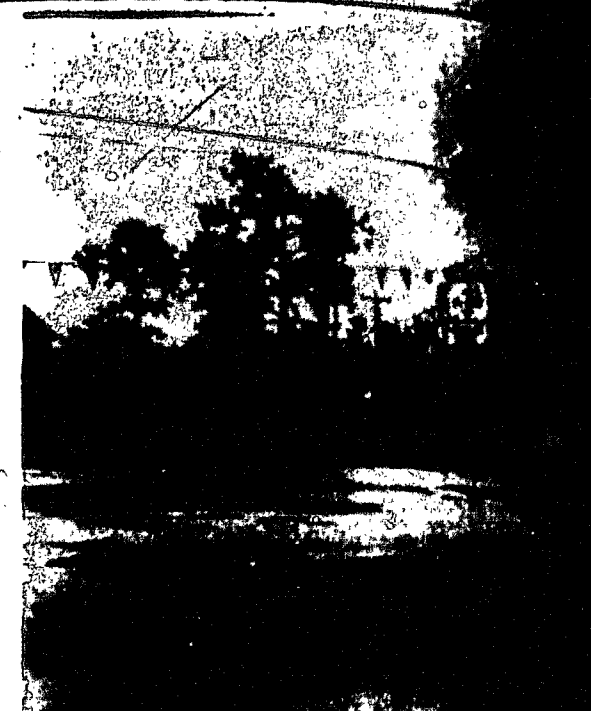

After soybeans are up and growing, grass and weeds in the drill area can be controlled with directed sprays. Overhead applications are not recommended at this early stage of soybean development.

For seedling grasses herbicide oil is recommended for use after the beans get at least 12 days old. This is one of the best controls for small grass but extreme care should be taken to keep the oil on only the lowest one inch of the soybean stem.

Generally Tenoran or Dintrio will be needed as directed sprays just as soon as they can be safely applied. Wait until the beans are five to six inches tall before using these materials and be sure to keep the spray on the lower one-third to one-half of the soybean stem.

After beans are eight inches tall, 2,4-DB can be used to kill coodaburs. Use only when coodaburs and soybeans are growing actively.

CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN

SGT. AND MRS. RICKY BRADDAM

Jones-Braddam
Vows Exchanged

Main Street United Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage Sunday afternoon of Miss Sherry Lee Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Jones of Bay St. Louis, and Sergeant Ricky Howard Braddam, son of Mrs. Pat Braddam of Rossville, Ga.

Rev. Bernard Walton, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony.

White gladioli, fern and an archway of branched candelabra against a background of palms decorated the church.

Appropriate organ music was provided by Mrs. Paula Woodfin and soloist Miss Teresa Jones, sister of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Empire gown of pale blue fashioned with a full overskirt of Alencon lace trimmed with small daisies seeded with pearls and a detachable lace train. Her four-tiered veil of illusion was held by a headpiece of white roses edged with lace and pearls. She carried a cascade of yellow tea roses centered with a yellow orchid.

Miss Rebecca Joy Beasley, Meridian, Miss., cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Jo Ann Beche and Cheryl Nybo of Bay St. Louis. Miss Romy Bishop, Mobile, Ala., was flower girl.

They wore lime green gowns fashioned on Empire lines with long sleeves and floor length full skirts. Their headpieces featured a single rose with a short veil of lime green illusion and they carried nosegays of white daisies.

David Braddam, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., served as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Billy Strain, Belle, Missouri and Paul Becke, Bay St. Louis.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's table, covered with a white linen cloth, was centered with a three-tiered cake trimmed with pale yellow spun sugar sweetheart roses. White mums and fern composed the centerpiece.

The bride entered wearing a white silk organza featuring a fitted Alencon lace bodice, a regal full skirt trimmed with a deep hem line featuring Alencon lace re-embroidered with seed pearls. Her train was chapel length with lace motifs and fell from an Alencon lace chapel cap also re-embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Philadelphais of white and white roses interspersed with English ivy.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Register were honored with a reception given in the Shamrock Room of Trapani's newly opened Waveland establishment.

Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Lewis Myrick, sister of the groom, who chose for the occasion a pink linen dress with pink accessories. She wore a pink cymbidium orchid corsage. Decorations used in the Shamrock Room were also in the yellow and white colors with daisies and chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery and baby breath.

Practical organ selections were played by Mrs. John McKenna during which time the bride's abundant nosegay of white gladioli, white Fugl nuna, and small sunshiny yellow chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery and baby breath.

Community Achievement

Hancock Countians are to be congratulated on the dedication of their new airport. This John Stennis Field and airport are a credit to the community and the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Hancock County wiped out geographic isolation completely with its Mississippi Test Facility that contributed so much to the exploration of outer space and putting our astronauts on the moon.

The area was originally reached by water and boat, followed by rails; then came highways, ferries and bridges, and now planes, as a community takes wings to become accessible by water, rail, by land and air.

Our deserving and unstinted felicitations to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Port and Harbor Commission and all the public and private agencies and individuals of Bay St. Louis and Hancock County who have worked together to make this project and improvement in transportation a reality. It is inspiring to see a people so recently stunned by the ravages of Hurricane Camille pick up the pieces of their shattered dreams and begin building all over again.

Blessed with a superb climate, with water in abundance, with excellent transportation facilities by land and air, a people of determination and faith move on to capitalize on their natural resources and native talent.

A people with the vision to contemplate the industrial uses to which the Mississippi Test Facility may be put, and the enterprise and initiative to realize upon its potentials face the future with confidence and faith.

Awake and on the alert, a citizenship that helped put a man on the moon takes its place in the sun.

Future Planned For Hancock Retarded

Progress and planned progress was reported on Wednesday evening when the Hancock County Association for Retarded Children met in the Bay St. Louis City Hall with Mrs. Zelma C. Stelz, president, reporting on activities and accomplishments.

Others active in the organization are Mrs. Cathy Carter, vice president; Mrs. Marie Stiefel, recording secretary; Mrs. James McFie, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Young Virgilio, treasurer. Mayor Warren J. Carver, also seated at the speaker's table, gave assurance to the group that class room space would be made available for the School for the Retarded Children in the Valens C. Jones building for the length of his tenure in office. He also stated that there would be no charge to the organization for utilities used in the operation of the school.

The Hancock County School for Retarded is supported by United Service funds of which Mrs. C. R. Beyer is local representative. Mrs. Beyer explained that there were certain guide lines to be followed when these funds were accepted and included a taboo on any fund-raising activities at a local level by the Hancock County Association. There are presently twenty-one children ranging in ages from four years through eighteen years attending the school, however, there are an estimated 500 retarded persons living within the County of Hancock.

Transportation problems have been a major reason why attendance in the school is low, according to Mrs. Stelz, who added that some children who should be in the school are attending public schools throughout the county because their parents refuse to admit that they have a handicap. This situation also presents a problem in the public school system where the time of teachers is consumed in attempting to construct on learning level. While there is nothing gained to report, Mrs. Stelz said the group she believed a bus for transportation would be made available next year.

Additional activities are planned for the children within the school and next year they will be included in the County Library sponsored tests for posters, book-aria and other projects in connection with Library Week, according to Mrs. William Hilliker, a library board member. Mrs. Hilliker said the works of children would be judged separately. The children will also participate in Junior Olympics, a program in physical education, which will include both physically and mentally handicapped persons who will compete with their non-handicapped counterparts. Mrs. Stelz feels this program will be invaluable in teaching better coordination and she has secured the cooperation of Terrell Randolph, a teacher at the Hancock County School, who will contribute his time in instructing and assisting with the Jr. Olympics program.

An evaluation program is also being set up, according to Mrs. Stelz, report where various tests are administered to a child at Mississippi Southern and in cooperation with the Mississippi State Board of Mental Health. Mrs. Stelz said the program will be a more effective teaching program in an individual basis.

With reference to the teachers in the Hancock County School, the retarded children were well qualified, but Mrs. Beyer reported at the meeting that the teachers now hold a certificate equivalent to a High School Diploma, and are attending classes at Keiser Air Force Base which will assist them in their specialized work and will count toward college courses. Mrs. Beyer lauded the teachers for their faithful performance of duties and complimented them on the extra effort made in meeting qualifications.

Funds scarcely cover necessities within the school, according to Mrs. Stelz, who says she has been promised a contribution of school books by a News Agency. Mrs. Stelz says second-hand or damaged books are acceptable and needed and would welcome donations of books suitable for these children as well as contributions of soap, towels and toilet paper, crayons, drawing paper, pencils, etc. Many of these students are quite gifted in Arts and Crafts, she added.

There was some division of opinion when Mrs. Stelz expressed her desire for the Retarded Children's School to run during the summer months. She felt that a lengthy vacation meant much re-teaching. Those opposed to the extended period of teaching felt these children should spend some time with other children in order to learn to more readily adapt themselves to situations they will face in every day living and when they are no longer within the school.

Mrs. Beyer reported that Harrison County has a very

Welfare Answers Church Group To Give Assistance

The County Director of Welfare answers below the two questions most frequently asked.

Q. Why doesn't the government insist that people work instead of drawing welfare?

A. In Mississippi there are many grant programs for people between the ages of 18 and 65, except those who are blind or permanently disabled and are unable to support themselves. Able-bodied adults under 65 do not qualify for a money grant. Therefore, a person must be over the age of 65, blind, physically unable to work, or children under age 18 to receive assistance. As one can see these persons are not really employable. Maybe, it should be stated that welfare is not a pension but an assistance program to help meet basic human needs for persons who can not help themselves.

Q. Why does a person have to reveal his private business affairs to the welfare department to receive a welfare assistance check?

Both state and federal law require that assistance go only to the needy. It is impossible to determine need without a look into private business affairs.

Forty senior high school young people and their eight adult advisors of the Ellinvold United Presbyterian Church of Glenshaw, Pa. (a suburb of Pittsburgh) will be guests of the First Presbyterian Church of Bay St. Louis, Miss., for the week of June 13-19. The purpose of their visit is to work in the clean up and renovation of homes of the congregation damaged by hurricane Camille.

They will begin their journey on 10 June stopping at night along the way at Nashville, Tenn., and Meridian, Miss., and for six days they will have their lodgings and prepare their own meals in the Bay St. Louis Church building annex. After work each day, there will be a time of recreation in which the local church young people will participate—beach parties, picnics, and a trip to Ship Island.

On Sunday morning, 14 June the visitors will participate in the regular worship hour with special vocal and instrumental music. Mr. Terry Stoops, their adult advisor, will bring the message. After the service, the visitors and the congregation will be guests of the Women of the Church for a "DINNER ON THE GROUNDS".

On Sunday evening at 7:30 the youth groups of the two churches will have a special program in which Jonathan Kern of New Orleans will give a lecture illustrated by slides of pictures he has taken of galaxies and outer space bodies. Mr. Kern is a recent member of Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Society and Undergraduate Medical and Surgical Society.

Dr. Lee is married to the former Susan Rhodes of Bay St. Louis.

Following graduation Dr. Lee was honored with a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Babin. Attending from Bay St. Louis were Mr. and Mrs. Willys Rhodes and son M.J. and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Rhodes and family.

FINALE SCENE from "Camelot", recent Little Theater Production acclaimed "brilliant and moving" by theatergoers.

"Camelot" Presented At Little Theatre

(A review by "Innocent")
"Bay St. Louis Little Theatre turns out to be the bravest knight of them all. For your courage in attempting the vastness of Camelot you deserve a place in knight's hall of fame -- a monumental undertaking! So congratulations to you all, especially for seeking out such fine young talent, for designing and building such elaborate and effective sets, and for having such an efficient stage crew. All those set changes! Bravo!"

So wrote the president of the Biloxi Little Theatre, who attended the Saturday night performance of CAMELOT and took the trouble to write a note about it -- a note filled with such phrases as "brave and imaginative directors," "pleasant music," and "elegant costumes." For, after getting off to a bad start on opening night with various accidents and delays, CAMELOT's cast and crew performed skillfully on the other three nights and added yet another success to the Little Theatre's growing list of musical hits.

Probably no one in his right mind would have assumed responsibility for putting on such a show as CAMELOT, yet the president of the theatre, Joe Marchino, and recently-elected board member Floyd Wiltz served as co-producers and happily told this reviewer that the results were well worth all their efforts. Acting director Burt Barrett, music director Olive McKenna, and technical director Don Baker must surely have received a ghostly tap from the sword Excalibur for the tremendous zeal and skill with which they shaped, week after week, the touching drama of King Arthur and his court.

Based more on Malory's account of the famous story than on Tennyson's, the Lerner and Loewe version emphasizes the heartbreaking attempt of the legendary young king to establish for the first time in history an order based on honor, truth, and justice, with disputes settled by civil courts rather than by hand-to-hand combat.

Jay Rosato effected a convincing transition from the bumbling, insecure young ruler of Act One to the aging and confident king seen at the final curtain. His acting and singing show great promise, as do those of the lovely young Sharon McKenna, whose expressive eyes and graceful motions brought to life an altogether adorable Guenevere. Norris Sumrall made an exceptionally good-looking Lancelot, torn between his growing love for Guenevere and his loyalty to Arthur. All three of these young actors deserve commendation not only for their enchanting songs but for their development of character as the play progressed.

A principal supporting role was played by Dick Wolfe, a seminarian at St. Augustine's, who portrayed the rheumatic Sir Pellinore and was easily a favorite with every audience. The only comic character in the play, Wolfe's Pellinore was truly "a delicious fellow -- a perfect cartoon of a man." Tom London, as the evil young Mordred, was so insidious and treacherous that a youngster on the front row, enthralled by the story, was heard to exclaim, "I hate you! Go away!" His voice, costumes, and lithe movements were particularly effective in this role, suggesting the tempting serpent in the Garden of Eden. The part of Merlin, the wizard who was young Arthur's teacher, was played by Burt Barrett.

Among the minor characters, too numerous to commend individually in this review, was Ed Turnipseed, who doubled as a member of the chorus and played the touching and all-important last scene role of young King Arthur, on whom King Arthur pinned his hopes for the survival of the ideals of the Round Table.

Special praise must be given to the knights and ladies of the Court, who created an elegantly arranged chorus and performed bit parts as needed. Several others in particular are to be commended for the success of this challenging play -- tenth grade student Terry Martin for designing the elaborate and charming sets required; Betty Lou Nay for assuming responsibility for the magnificent costumes of the cast; Don Baker for master-minding the extremely complicated set construction, lighting, and scene changes; orchestra director Davis Williams; and pianist Mary Langford for endless rehearsals resulting in controlled and delightful musical accompaniment; Lou Wilkerson, in charge of properties; Emily

Precautions To Take Case Of Hurricane

AFTER THE HURRICANE

1. Avoid felled or low-hanging power lines. Avoid coming in contact with metal objects which may be touching the damaged power lines. Notify police or utility company of dangling or broken wires.

2. Be cautious of streams or rivers. The water level can rise rapidly even after the heaviest rain has ended.

3. Control your curiosity. Stay away from areas of great damage. Allow rescue and first aid workers to operate without interference.

4. Listen to your radio for instructions. Drinking water may have to be sterilized.

5. If the power is off, don't open freezers unnecessarily.

MRS. RICHARD MESTAYER III

Davis-Mestayer Vows At Galloway Church

Wearing a formal gown of imported English galloway lace, Miss Marilyn Russell Davis of Jackson, Mississippi, became the bride of Richard Frederick Mestayer, III of Waveland, Mississippi, in a ceremony Monday, the first of June, in the Chapel of Galloway Memorial United Methodist Church. The Reverend William Gobar performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends.

Beneath the gold cross of the Chancel was a mass of majestic daisies and on the end of the communion table, gold Trinity candelabra held white tapers. On the sides, traditional candelabra were entwined with garlands. The bride was given away by her father, the Honorable Russell C. Davis, Mayor of Jackson. Her wedding gown was of English lace with finely gathered skirt ending in a scalloped hem. The scoop neckline was edged with a ruffle of lace and seed pearls. Tiny satin buttons accented the Empire bodice and the long full sleeves were trimmed with a deep cuff. She wore a bouquet of white silk organza blossoms and silk leaves and carried a colonial bouquet of Butterfly roses, Marguerite daisies, gardenias, and gypsophila.

Mrs. Charles Edward Gibson and Mrs. Susan Davis Walton attended their sister, each wearing a formal length dress in yellow with tiny puffed sleeves and braided trim. They carried nosegays of daisies and baby's breath edged in leaves of ivy. As headresses, they wore a

Favre-Penton United Our Lady Of The Gulf

The marriage of Miss Ursula Anne Favre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Favre, nee Virgin Green, of Bay St. Louis, and Edmund Joseph Penton III, son of Mrs. Horace Tynes, also of this city, was solemnized at a Nuptial Mass at High Noon Saturday in Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

Rev. Terry Smith, STD, St. Augustine's Rectory, performed the double ring ceremony. He was assisted by Rev. Gregory Johnson, pastor Our Lady of the Gulf Church. Peter and Paul Schum served as altar boys.

Mrs. John McKenna, organist, accompanied Our Lady of the Gulf center choir who sang Ave Maria, O Lord I Am Not Worried and Praise Angels during mass and On This Day O Blessed Mother, as the bride placed a bouquet of white pompons at the feet of the altar of the Blessed Mother.

Arrangements of white gladioli and yellow pompons decorated the altar flanked by potted palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silk organza gown fastened with a sheer yoke bodice with a Victorian ruffled collar and Bishop sleeves trimmed in Alencon lace. Appliques of Alencon lace trimmed the bodice and hemline of the gown. The detachable Watteau train was adorned with lace motifs embroidered with clusters of seed pearls. Her veil of imported silk illusion was held by a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white pompons and yellow sweetheart roses.

Miss Paula Favre attended her sister as maid of honor. Miss Mary Margaret La Fontaine was bridesmaid and Misses Melissa Maggio and

The male and flower girls wore yellow chiffon gowns fastened on Empire lines with Victorian necklines and long sleeves trimmed in white lace. They carried cascades of yellow pompons and Marguerite daisies and wore matching headpieces.

Barry Joseph Favre, brother of the bride, served the groom as best man. Groomsman and ushers were Frank and Ronald Penton, brothers of the groom, and Edmund Schum, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the American Legion Room on Green Meadow Road.

The bride's table was set with an imported lace and white cloth held a two-tiered cake trimmed with pale yellow flowers and white pompons. The groom's table was set with a silver Queen Queen, silver branched candelabra entwined with yellow and white flowers and Mrs. Favre as center piece.

Miss Favre provided at the cake table and Mrs. Clarence Schum, aunt of the bride, was at the punch bowl. Misses Mary Ann and Kathleen Schum, cousins of the bride, and Ramona Corvus, cousin of the groom, served as two girls. Mrs. William Teichert kept the guest register.
